"THE TENNESSEE JUSTICE CENTER WAS MY EARTH ANGEL"

Amanda Anderson was dying of cancer, fearful of leaving her daughters without health insurance. She was especially tormented by worries for 17-year old Samantha, who suffers from a rare, potentially life-threatening autoimmune disease.

Amanda's parents, Barbara and James McMurtry, did all they could to ease Amanda's suffering and comfort their grandchildren. However, stymied by red tape, they could not grant Amanda her dying wish: health coverage for her kids.

When hospice contacted TJC, client advocate De Vann Sago immediately went to work. Within days, Barbara showed Samantha's new TennCare card to Amanda. With immense relief, Amanda thanked God, saying, "That's what I've been praying for." A few days later, she was gone. De Vann speaks reverently of the privilege of being part of the family's journey and of witnessing such love.

TJC honors Barbara as a Mother of the Year. In her loving devotion to her daughter and grandchildren, Barbara embodies the courage and love we celebrate on Mother's Day. She is proud to see those qualities - and Amanda's big heart - in her grandchildren. Samantha, now assured of the medical treatment she needs, is planning on a career in social work helping others.
